Accession No. 79, Class No. Vol.

"Consider what you have in the smallest chosen library. A company of the wisest and wittiest men that could be picked out of all civil countries, in a thousand years, have set in best order the results of their learning and wisdom. The men themselves were hid and inaccessible, solitary, impatient of interruption, fenced by etiquette; but the thought which they did not uncover to their bosom friend is here written out in transparent words to us, strangers of another age."

EDITORIAL

---

HEREWITH we present to you the fourteenth volume of the INDEX. It has been our aim, in its compilation, to be as accurate as possible, with what result, reader, we leave to you. Our work has been pleasant ; still, we are not anxious to serve on next year's board ; and, although small in numbers, we have not at any time been discouraged in its preparation. As the purport of the INDEX has been stated in previous volumes, it is unnecessary to repeat it here. We have inserted a list of the recipients of the different prizes, since establishment, thinking it might be of interest to some. Since so many changes have been made in the curriculum the past year, too numerous to mention here, it was thought best to publish it.

There have been changes made in the Faculty during the past year. In losing President Stockbridge, we lost a practical agriculturist and a gentleman who thoroughly understood his profession. On leaving, President Stockbridge was presented with a gold-headed cane as a memento of our esteem. In President Chadbourne we have a thorough scientist, who, from the present outlook, promises to place the College on a strong basis. We will, as students, give him our hearty coöperation.

We regret the loss of Prof. Harrington from the chair of Physics, and Civil Engineering. Although associated with him but for the short space of a year, we learned fully to regard his worth as a gentleman and a scholar. Our best wishes go with him to his new field of labor.

Though the chair of Agriculture has not yet been supplied, it has been filled very acceptably by J. W. Clark, '72.

We welcome the new Professor of Mathematics, and we have every reason to believe that he will make his department a success.

We take the liberty to suggest that this is not a military academy, but an Agricultural College ; and in reference to the drill we can say that "too much of a good thing is too plenty."

The College has reason to congratulate itself in securing the services of Mr. Wentzell as market gardener. The crops under his care during the past year proved a success, notwithstanding the dry weather.

Our farm, under the management of Mr. D. H. Tillson, is constantly improving. Leveling and draining have not only added to the fertility of the land, but have made it much more pleasing to the eye. If this is not already a model farm, we have every reason to believe that the time is not far distant when it will stand second to none in New England.

A much-needed change has been made in the terms. This term began August 31, a week later than usual ; next year it will begin a week later still. There will be a three days' recess at Thanksgiving, and the term closes Tuesday before Christmas ; then a three weeks' vacation. The remainder of the year is divided into two terms, with a short vacation in March, and commencement at the usual time. To have the farm looking its best, commencement should be a week later, which would bring it to June 27.

We are sorry to see that the Senior Class takes so little interest in athletics, as we consider it a necessary component of college life ; but perhaps it is all that could be expected from such a lifeless class.

We were disappointed in the number of Freshmen, but the interest they have already taken in college duties makes up to some extent their deficiency in numbers.

We are pleased to hear of the appointment of Prof. Goessmann for Director of the experimental station, as it is known that no person is more capable of directing such a work than the Professor.

We can say once more, but with more assurance, that the prospects of the College were never better than at the present time. With the new building, and with the promise of more buildings when needed, we feel warranted in saying that the success of the College is inevitable.

And now that our work is done, we present it to you for your approval or condemnation. With many thanks to those who have aided us in any way, we gladly shake from our feet the dust of the sanctum, and welcome our successors from '85.

CLASS COMMUNICATIONS.

IT has just been an anomalistic year, of 365 days, 6 hours, 13 minutes and 49 seconds, since the Class of '83 wielded the editorial quill, and the old stub with which she has written for the last three years is swiftly going where all good pens go. But though the Class pen is getting dulled by constant use, the intellect which has ever guided and controlled it is sharper, clearer, more defined and much more intellectual, by the continual friction against the superior minds of our honored Faculty, who, like the potter, receiving our minds in the plastic form, have shaped and rounded them, adding a touch here and smoothing off some corner there, until they have at last produced, as near as may be, the perfect vessel.

And what a fearful responsibility rests on these moulders of the human intellect! Our future course of action—ay, the shaping of the very destiny of our lives—lies within their control. Then how essential that each potter should possess the elements of the true artist.

And here we take occasion to express our thanks to our instructors for their increasing devotion to us, and who, through sunshine and shadow, have ever been our advisers and well-wishers.

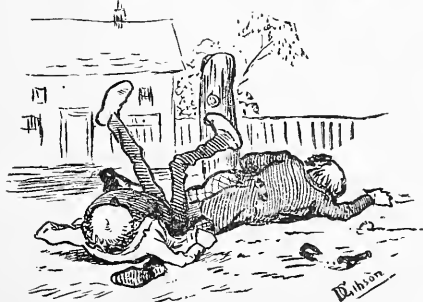

Never in our College course has the horizon of hope been illuminated with brighter or more cheerful prospects than at present. "To him that hath shall be given" seems to hold true. The State gave to us from her abundance. We see a part of our extensive campus furnishing the foundation for a new Armory, which is rapidly being constructed, and by the time Winter shall [have sifted down on us his pure mantle of snow, we shall have a drill hall which will be both safe and pleasant to manoeuvre in, and we shall not be obliged, as in past Winters, to either go without drill entirely, or march in the old Gym., at the risk of our devoted heads.

Now that the Experimental Station has been established here, it lends a new feature of interest to the College, while the results of its work will be highly beneficial both to the College and State.

In fact, everything is rapidly progressing here at the College ; and with such a President at the head of it, and with its bright future, nothing should prevent the rallying to the standard of the M. A. C. every young man in the New England States who wants a thorough and practical college education.

And now, in closing, we who have passed through the wisdom and folly of the first three years would say to the Junior Classes, improve your time ; for the time is only too near when you can not find the time to improve, or the ability to improve the time. Get the idea well instilled into your minds that it is not for others, but for your own personal good, that you are partaking of the Tree of Knowledge, and there will not only be a greater degree of satisfaction in your studies, but you will find they benefit you more hereafter, when you come in contact with the outer world, and take your voyage on the turbulent sea of life.

H.

AT last we find our names enrolled as Juniors, and in accordance with the time-honored custom we again take up the traditional pen, and here inscribe our deeds of the past and make known our hopes for the future. Many changes have been made in our surroundings since we first came here as students. Men have come and men have gone, but the same old drama of College life is daily played.

When in the Autumn of '80 our Class assembled at the foot of the Hill of Science, we saw no reason why the greater part of our number should not in four years stand upon the graduating platform of the Agricultural College. But we were disappointed; for already fifteen of our original number have left us, and, alas! two of our beloved classmates we have with reluctant hands and saddened hearts laid beneath the sod. Yet we are not discouraged by the loss of numbers, for each departing classmate has tended to strengthen rather than weaken the silver cord of friendship.

As we cross the threshold of Junior year, let us take one lingering look into the past. From the lowly estate of Freshmen we have fought our way upward to the privileges and responsibilities of Upper Classmen. We have been fully convinced, during our two years of College life, that a great many factors should enter into a student's training besides text books. Wherever any fun was to be had there we were always found.

Although the present year has changed our name, yet inwardly we are filled with the same old Sophomoric spirit which occasionally bursts out, notwithstanding our attempts to don a Junior's dignity.

We congratulate ourselves that as a class we have always worked together harmoniously. We have ever played an important part in athletics, while in the class-room we have proved equal to the work laid before us. Next term we are to write originals. Then will Freshmen wonder at our wisdom, and Seniors listen with envy to our words of eloquence.

As we enter upon the last half of our College life, we realize as never before how rapidly our student life is being run off from the reel of time. Let us, therefore, with a present appreciation of our privileges, weave into our characters such a love of truth and usefulness as will enable the Class of '84 to send into the world men who will be a benefit to humanity and an honor to the M. A. C.

Hurrah ! hurrah for Eighty-Four !
Hurrah ! hurrah for Aggie !
We'll do our best in the interest
Of Eighty-Four and Aggie.

J.

OUR vacation has ended, and we now commence another year of mingled study and pleasure. We have just passed the first milestone of our college life. For one year we have seen the letter F glaring forth from that stone. We have patiently waited for the time when, reaching the other side, we should see the letter S shining brightly in our faces. It is true we are but one step higher; but it shows us that we are gaining ground, and we must remember that true success is gained a step at a time.

Several of our classmates had reached this point, but for various reasons were unable further to pursue the course. They have our best wishes for their success, and we trust we shall ever be worthy a remembrance by them. However, we have been reinforced so that our number remains undiminished.

The care usually bestowed upon the Freshmen has this year been dispensed with, as it was thought inconsistent with the new management. The "grand rush," although awarded to '86, was far from being won by them. It was probably owing to the fact that, in the commotion of the moment; the judge was unable to see, but, sympathizing with the Freshmen, decided in their favor. It might be supposed that we were growing quite infirm, judging from the number of walking-sticks in use; but such is evidently not the belief of the Freshies, though they have never dared to prove our condition.

As we have completed a year at this institution, we naturally ask ourselves, Have we accomplished anything? I think we have. Although our year's work may appear small, yet we have certainly laid the foundation for future acquirements. As we look back over the past year, we may see many errors due to our inexperience. Let us profit by our observations, and strive to avoid such mistakes in the future. Our studies for the coming year promise to be even harder than usual. A few changes concerning them seem to meet with approval, as may be inferred from the few that avail themselves of the French optional ; also Chemistry, which has been transferred to the Sophomore year. It is probably supposed that we are better able to comprehend its secrets ; but even yet it is extremely hard for most of us to grasp the ideas of our Professor.

As so small a class has entered to fill the places of the late Seniors, greater action devolves upon us ; and never let it be said of us :

“ You are dull, and those sparks of life
That should be in an Aggie, you do want,
Or else you use not.”

P.

“BOO—hoo—boo—hoo—bah—Eighty-Six!”

This, reader, is our Class howl. We give this cry, because we know there is not another Class in College that has a yell anything like ours. It was got up to frighten the bold, bad Sophs., but they don't scare worth a cent.

When we first came to College, our mas said we must not associate with naughty boys, but must be good; so most of us are going to join the preying band. Our moral character is as unimpeachable as the Declaration of Independence and a Fourth-of-July picnic. We don't know what this means, but as a Senior said so it must be true.

We don't smoke cigarettes, play penny antè, nor walk out with girls in the daytime that we have not been introduced to. We don't carry canes, either, as much as we did. We were all sick at first, and one fellow with big red eyes went home to see his ma, and has not come back yet; probably College life didn't suit him.

There is one little boy in our Class they call Spring Chicken; we don't know why, unless it is because he has got a beak on him like a hen. O! we must tell you about Bill. He is a funny boy, Bill is. He has got a voice like a big bull frog. He beats the assembly, and is a good drummer.

The Sophs. were awful mad because they didn't win the rush. One of them was so mad that he yelled out in a sarcastic way:

“Why did the judge say he thought Eighty-Six won? Why didn’t he say they did won?” We challenged the Sophs. to a game of base ball, but they would not play us. Probably they have not forgotten about the rush. We gave them to understand that we were not to be fooled with, and we don’t mean to be fooled with, either.

Our relations with the Faculty have not been very pleasant, because when they look at us we are so frightened that we flunk right along. One Professor, called Johnnie, is the sternest, and scares us more than the rest, but we have been told that he is not dangerous.

Ours is a smart Class. We run a minstrel show, a base ball nine, and intend to run things in general.

“Boo—hoo—boo—hoo—bah—Eighty-six.”

HERE AND THERE.

PROF. H.—Mr. C., do I know anything about this triangle ?
Mr. C.—No, sir !!

SCENE—DRILL HALL.—Lient. Bridgman appears on drill. The bell not being rung, he, waxing wroth, rings it himself. No one appears but G. Spaulding.

Lient.—Mr. Spaulding, what is going on down stairs ?

S.—A lecture, I think.

Lient.—A lecture ! These things must not interfere with my drill !!! (Exit discomfited Lientenant.)

P. A. C.—Mr. H-lm-n, what kind of insects produce their young alive ?

H-lm-n.—A certain kind of toad ; I don't remember the name now.

P. A. C.—Gentlemen, you are late ; how did it happen ?

First Gent.—Lientenant kept us over time.

P. A. C.—He should not do that without authority from headquarters !! (Great applause from the pit.)

P. A. C.—Mr. H., how do fishes breathe ?

Mr. H.—Through their fins, sir !!

PRES. C.—Mr. M., give the classes of insects.

Mr. M.—Hexapod, myriapod and tripod.

CHRONICLES.

AND it came to pass, in the second year of the reign of one Levi over the Aggies, that he said unto the people : "Have I not dwelt in this land fourteen years ? And behold the time draweth nigh that I should depart ; therefore choose ye a man to rule in my stead." Then were the hearts of the people exceedingly sad. Nevertheless they put a staff in his hand, and he departed into a far country.

Then the elders gathered themselves together, and chose one Paul, a Williamite, to rule over the people. Now Paul was a man skilled in all manner of sciences. And he gave new laws unto his subjects, even laws respecting the destruction of property; and against all manner of wickedness. And he declared, as one having authority, that "whosoever broke these laws should not prosper, but would be sent back in shame to the land of his fathers."

And it came to pass, in the season nigh unto harvest, when the melon and gooseberry were ripened, and the festive notes of the cricket and bullfrog were heard throughout the land, that many striplings from the region round about came to the gates of the temple of learning, and cried with a loud voice, "Open unto us !" Then answered the chief priest, "Why come ye hither ? and what seek ye ?" Then with one accord they replied, "We seek to be Freshmen." Then did the chief priest put unto them certain strange questions, to which if they answered well they should come in, but if not they should dwell without the temple forever. And having called upon one Robert, whose surname is derived from the bearers of the palm, he said unto him, "Repeat to us the table wherewith wine is measured." And in these words did Robert answer him :

"Four gills make one drink ;
Two drinks make one drunk ;
Four drunks make one flunk."

Then did the chief priest require of one Eaton, that he should declare a certain law of his own language; to which he answered :

“ I am loved,
She is loved,
We are loved.”

And when the striplings had answered many such questions, the chief priest said unto them, “ Well done, ye good and tender shoots; ye shall surely dwell in the temple of learning, for verily these are the words of truth and wisdom.”

Now when the chief priest had thus spoken, behold, these same Freshmanites became possessed of exceeding self-conceit, for great was their pride; and they gathered themselves together in the tent of one Copeland: and lo, there was no head. Then was one chosen from among them who should preside, and also one who should write down the sayings of the wise, and who was called the scribe. Now when they had disposed themselves in their various stations, behold they did greatly work their jaws, and did shoot forth many high-sounding words, saying that they were no slouches, and would in their time win everlasting glory.

Now it happened that there was at the temple of learning a custom handed down through the ages, that the Sophomorites and the Freshmanites should “rush.” And it came to pass, in the still watches of the night, that the Freshmanites clothed themselves for the contest and issued forth upon the campus; and when they had uttered their war cry and howled lustily, the Sophomorites came out against them. Then did each tribe invoke the aid of the God of Battle. And they did exceedingly hump themselves. But the great and surpassing valor of the Freshmanite prevailed. And when the conflict was brought to a close, the Sophomores gathered themselves up like unto twelve baskets of fragments, and there was among them weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth. Then great wrath taketh possession of the conquered tribe, and in time a spirit nourished by the devil cometh upon them, which caused them to gibe and scoff at the words of him who acted as judge in the contest. And then did the men of the other tribes rub their hands together and smile loudly, and say, “ Verily, these things remind us of our early days.”

He that hath an ear, let him hear, and take heed unto these words.

ALCORAN

1. Students are requested to combine for the purpose of absentsing themselves from all exercises, and to violate all known regulations of the College.

2. The roll will not be called five minutes after the ringing of the bell, but as soon as the Prof. is ready to begin.

3. Excuse for absence from one or more exercises can be obtained by leaving your name, just before or after, with our military adjunct.

4. An excuse, provided you have been in the Freshman Class one year, for absence for the remaining years, can be obtained from the Faculty on any provocation whatsoever. It will be given in the form of a certificate.

5. Unexcused absences are encouraged by the Faculty, who are enthusiastic over the idea of filling out the above-named certificates.

6. Students are requested ( ? ) to attend service in the chapel Sunday mornings. The North Amherst church will not be considered an equivalent.

7. Military drill will be kept up with increasing animation by our Military Adjunct, who, having nothing to do in the A. M., feels it his duty to bestir himself every P. M. (Sundays excepted). A diploma will be given for a certain amount of shekels, one hundred per cent. (100 %) profit to the donor (don't give it away), enabling you to command a detachment in the Second Artillery, U. S. A., and also to be Professor of Military Science and Tactics in the Texas State Agricultural College.

8. No student who feels indisposed, or is in the least disabled, will be allowed to attend Class work.

9. When High School girls pass the College, students are requested to recognize the fact in the loudest manner possible, but at all times to conduct themselves with propriety.

Attest: HOUSE BY THE STREAM, and MAN OF THE BRIDGE.

OEIL DE BOEUF

BISHOP.—“ I'll cavil on the ninth part of a hair.”

BAGLEY.—“ Full many a lady I have eyed with fond regard.”

BRAUNE.—“ He other cares, in other climes, engage.”

HEVIA.—“ My only books were women's looks, and folly is all they taught me.”

HOLMAN.—“ A line ; he has length, but no thickness.”

LINDSEY.—“ Hear ye yon lion roaring in his den ? 'Tis three weeks since he trimmed his shaggy locks.”

NOURSE.—“ Too much gravity argues a shallow mind.”

PRESTON.—“ I'm not on the roll of common men.”

WHEELER.—“ I'm a sage, and can command the elements—at least I think I can.”

MINOTT.—“ O that I had been writ down an ass !”

ALMEIDA.—“ Would that I were as wise as I am lazy !”

ALLEN.—“ Go soak thy head in a keg of nails, thou lily-livered boy.”

BROWNE.—“ You may have my pink stockings, but not my heart.”

CUTTER.—“ A sadder and a wiser man he rose the morrow morn.”

CHADBOURNE.—“ I will a round, unvarnished tale deliver” (of Exeter).

GOLDTHWAIT.—“ Trust not him who seems to be a saint.”

HOWELL.—“ 'Tis amazing to see how quickly he strikes into the scent of a lady's handkerchief.”

LEARY.—“ Le silence est l'esprit de sots.”

PHELPS.—“ Would he knew as much as he thinks he does !”

SPAULDING.—“ The worst is not, so long as we can say, 'This is the worst.' ”

TEKIRIAN.—“I’m a gatherer and disposer of other men’s stuffs.”

WHITEMORE.—“Comb down his hair ; look ! look ! it stands upright.”

BUFFINGTON.—“When found, make note of.”

BARBER.—“I am a man more sinned against than sinning.”

BROOKS.—“The moon looks down on many brooks, but the moon can see but one Brooks like this.”

PUTNAM.—“This honest creature doubtless sees and knows more, much more, than he unfolds.”

BARKER.—“If thy head were like thy feet, thou would’st indeed be great.”

CLAPP.—“A fossilized Freshman.”

COPELAND.—“The blowing of a whale, that science tells about, is nothing to the blowing when this Fresh-man comes out.”

DANKS.— }
FELT.— } “Would that you and I knew where a commodity

Three wear mustaches. Two wear side whiskers. Three wear peach fuzz. One on account of the promiscuousness of his probocis, and the consequent amount of shade around that same organ, renders it impossible to grow but eight hairs on one side and three on the other. One wears glasses. The rest are color blind. Two have light hair. Four have dark hair. The remainder use so much hair die that it is impossible to tell the natural color. One is bald headed. Eight are Republicans. Two are Democrats. All are members of the Bar(room). Democrats all drink red eye. Republicans drink anything. One is engaged. None are married. All are lunatics and poets.

LACONIC MANUAL

---

First Fresh. at Hash House :—" I say, Bill, what is the matter with this ice cream ?"

Second Fresh. :—" I don't know, I can't taste anything."

First Fresh. :—" Neither can I, and that is what I am growling about."

What can't be cured must be endured, but first try Holman's Liver pad.

Leary has concluded to have his pet cat stuffed. We think it a good plan, for at present the cat is as thin as Hash House soup.

I anticipate that sufficient pecuniary aid can obviously be obtained from the institution to liquidate one half of the indebtedness, and would moreover suggest that the aforesaid plan be executed with great celerity. Right of companies, rear into column, March.

What Freshman went to Harrington's planing mill for good plain board ?

To whom it may concern :

" Would that pneumonia's clutches
Or diphtheretic cough
Would seize his vocal muscles
And kindly shut him off."

PHELPS :—" Who is the author of your prize piece, Allen ?"

ALLEN :—" It was anonymous."

PHELPS :—" Why ! he is the same person that wrote my piece."

Revised Course of Study, in substance, same as already approved. This Course may be slightly varied for convenience.

French and German are hereafter to be optional studies.

Studies of first two terms of each year are so arranged as to make a connected course by themselves, or so nearly a connected course, that students can be absent the Summer term and do such work as will enable them to go on with their classes. Such students not to receive the same degree as those who spend three terms of each year in college work.

Provision is also made for Post-graduate students, especially in the chemical course, and in connection with the Experiment Station.

It is impossible, in advance, to fix the exact amount of time for each study. Other studies will be introduced from time to time as the wants of college demand.

ALMA MATER.

THAT something from the pen of a graduate of the Massachusetts Agricultural College shall be contributed to the pages of the INDEX, has come to be a thing of yearly expectation by its large and increasing number of readers. And so, on this occasion, to aid and encourage the publication of this mirror of college life, and to call to mind our existence as Alumni, we with some hesitation indulge in the production of a short article for completing the pages devoted to Alumni Statistics.

As year by year flies past and more are added to our number ; as the months, weeks and moments are carrying us onward in the paths of life, to be, we trust, bright, efficient and shining lights in our own community, at least, it is no more than natural, and no more than right, that we should occasionally look back with interest upon those who are fighting the same battles that we fought, and upon those who have taken our places in the sphere of college life. There is no one of us who does not at times indulge in mental retrospects of the years passed in the good old town of Amherst ; who does not recall the familiar faces of friends, professors and classmates ; who does not note with interest every step in the line of improvement : and there are none that in such reveries do not entertain the brightest hopes of the future usefulness of our common Alma Mater. We have seen the tide of its prospects ebb until the lowest limit was reached, and now gladly watch the returning flood, flowing in response to the almost inevitable laws of the public weal, which demands that those who are in the future to supply our teeming population with food and clothing shall have in their ranks educated, cultured and refined men. And from this time forth each class, in departing from the shades of this educational institution, will, in their turn, mark higher upon the sands of time the successive careers of its usefulness.

We as Alumni are yet young, bouyant, full of life, and united, though Death's sickle has lessened our ranks upon four sad occasions. The many inhabitants of the State who lose no opportunity to sneer at the idea, that to be a farmer, an education is just as necessary as in the following of any other pursuit, and those who look with distrust upon the very existence of the institution, should bear in mind that it is still in one sense an experiment, and that from this circumstance it cannot help laboring under a disadvantage inherent in all new undertakings. Surely it is to be hoped that those are growing beautifully less in number who would consider money as wasted when used to educate a farmer. Those who have graduated from any Agricultural College, even if not engaged in agriculture or its kindred pursuits, can, nevertheless, wield an influence for good if they will. The sentiment that the life of a farmer does not necessarily place him upon a lower round of society's ladder can be made prominent, while we can be living proofs of the fact that on the man, not the labor, depends his position in society and the amount of respect, accorded to him by his fellow-men.

But enough for the future and ourselves. Our thoughts instinctively turn to you who are even now running a four-years' race at college, helping each other out of difficult places in your studies; also assisting mutually to shirk as many more, laying nefarious plans to obtain "bolts," and resisting, as all students do, many of the rules of the institution. Not by any means would we attempt to advise, or pass judgment upon such proceedings, for only too often have we been there ourselves. The number of classes who have left our College is now eleven. You who are now there will swell the number to fifteen. Think how each moment irresistibly is carrying you onward to the future, and how the opportunities for gaining knowledge at the Massachusetts Agricultural College are numbered. Strive that your minds may be the better able to grasp the few remaining and make good use of them, is the only hint we will throw out as to your future actions.

We look with interest for each succeeding number of the INDEX. We are living in that position, or angle, which allows us to see in its pages the reflection of the life we once enjoyed. And if by adding to its pages once a year a few lines we can show our continued interest in the future welfare of our Alma Mater, or in your efforts in the pursuit of an education, or in the success of the INDEX, our efforts will not be wholly lost.

DAVIS SWING CHURN.

EASIEST TO USE!

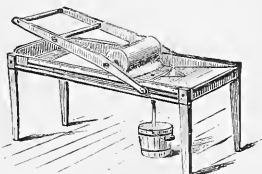

EASIEST TO CLEAN!

It does not require more than half as much effort to work as the easiest revolving or crank churn. It is like a pendulum—start it and it will almost swing itself. It has very great advantages over the revolving churns. It is not an unusual occurrence for the cover in the revolving churns to fall out and let all the cream on to the floor, losing more than the price of the churn at one time. The cover in the Davis Swing is always on top.

EUREKA BUTTER WORKER.

The Worker is built in the most thorough manner and is so simple that it is offered at an extremely low price. It is constructed upon the only correct principle for working butter quickly and easily without injuring the grain or texture of the butter. It combines all the good points of the lever and roller workers, with the objectionable features overcome.

Nesbitt's Patent Butter Printers.

These are the strongest, truest and handiest of all the single-lever presses, and admit of very rapid working.

The working parts are secured by wedges, so as to be easily removed for cleansing and scalding; and the top or lid is automatically fastened down by a wooden latch. A very heavy pressure may be applied if the butter is hard. The machine is exceedingly well-made, of hard wood, with brass hinges and screws, of plain but finished workmanship. The butter is printed in rectangular (brick) form, and is removed upon the stamp block.

(Half-pound Press, showing Butter-Print enlarged.)

THE IMPROVED EVAPORATORS.

Will evaporate Maple Sap and Sorghum Juice faster and with less fuel than any other apparatus in use. Make Jelly from Sweet Cider without sugar.

THE ETNA FRUIT DRIER.

Dries all kinds of fruit more rapidly than any other Evaporator: retains the natural flavor, leaving it in the finest condition for market. Has all the latest improvements. All sizes for family or factory use. Prices the lowest.

Send postal for Circulars and Price-lists of any of above Implements.
